

How OGCI works: WORKSTREAMS AND TASKFORCES

OGCI takes collective action and engages with stakeholders, working through thematic workstreams and specific taskforces. It invests through its US$1B+ investment fund, OGCI Climate Investments.

The workstreams are composed of member company experts and cover OGCI focus areas:

- The Role of Gas workstream focuses on actions that help to improve the climate performance of natural gas across the gas value chain, notably on methane emissions reduction and flaring.
- The Carbon Capture Use and Storage (CCUS) workstream aims to identify and resolve barriers to CCUS deployment from industry, policy, regulatory and storage perspectives to facilitate the development of a commercial CCUS industry, able to mitigate carbon dioxide emissions at the scale required.
- The Transport workstream focuses on catalytic actions to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from transport sectors on a significant scale, focusing on hard-to-abate sectors like aviation, shipping and long-haul trucks.
- The Energy Efficiency workstream identifies and prioritizes opportunities for energy efficiency in the energy sector through deployment of high-impact technologies and systems.
- The Natural Climate Solutions workstream identifies opportunities for OGCI to contribute to improving the capacity of oceans, forests, grasslands, peat, mangroves and soil to act as natural sinks for carbon dioxide.
- The Low Emission Opportunities workstream is OGCI's think-tank, exploring issues of relevance to mid- and long-term global emissions reduction.

In addition to the workstreams, the OGCI has permanent and temporary taskforces, focused on specific items to support OGCI's progress. The main taskforces are:

- The Carbon Intensity taskforce, an ad-hoc group of member company experts with the mandate to define joint methodology on how to address the carbon intensity of member companies' activities.
- The Reporting taskforce, a permanent group of member company experts supporting the accuracy and integrity of data collection and reporting on key performance indicators for OGCI.
- The Communication taskforce, a permanent group of communication professionals from member companies who support OGCI's communications team.
- The High-Level Advocacy taskforce, a permanent group of member company senior representatives focusing on developing policy positions and related advocacy action plans for OGCI.

The number, composition and mandate of workstreams and taskforces evolve over time in order to maximize the impact and efficiency of OGCI's actions and engagements.
